Alberta Puts $1,175,000 In Victory Loan

Getting behind the Victory Loan is a convincing manner and continuing its announced policy of co-operating to the fullest possible extent with the Dominion government in its war effort the Alberta government has subscribed $1,175,000 to the loan, it was announced yesterday by Premier William Aberhart.

This amount represents amounts from various government trust funds and from individuals associated with the government.

An amount of $300,000 will come from the Workmen's Compensation Board and a similar amount will be provided by the Hall Insurance Board. That will leave $575,000 to come from the Teachers' Retirement Fund, and the rest—the larger part—from other sources.

In taking this large amount of the new loan, the government is continuing the policy of co-operation started off in 1940, in assisting war financing to the fullest possible extent.

In the first loan of February 1, 1940, the province applied for

R.A.F. Hitting At Invasion Coast

FOLKESTONE, Eng., June 4—(AP)—A British Royal Air Force plane crashed last night on the French coast, about 10 miles west of the invasion coast. Observers on the British side of the channel reported hearing the roar of the British planes as they crossed the mithrashed channel.

Apparently there were two separate attacks. The roar of explosions was heard at two distinct intervals. Towns on the British coast were hit by British bombs, leading to belief that the British planes may have been loaded with some of Britain's newest explosives.

Planes were heard over the channel and the thunder of their motors indicated large formations were being used.

British Occupy Mosul As Hand Is Strengthened For Major Middle East Battle

Alberta Puts $1,175,000 In Victory Loan

$800,000 worth of bonds, but that John was on a basis whereby the bonds were apportioned, the total amount was $1,175,000.

A TO Z EDITOR

In the second lead of October 1, '40, the province took up $250,000 in the three loans to date, and the first loan was $1,000,000. Mr. Aberhart who is honorary chairman of the Alberta Victory Loan, and Mrs. Aberhart have given full support to the drive.

A recent provincial statement in respect to the loan declared: "Let us all do our best to have victory and peace. The province of Alberta is for an all-out war effort. We feel that the federal government and the Alberta provincial leadership in this regard, having the full mandate of the people to carry on the war. It would be a great disservice if all citizens of Canada should do everything they can under the circumstances to assist in the totalistic war against our enemies."

The French "mandates of Syria and Lebanon, the eastern and western parts of the Mediterranean seemed the chief trouble spots."

Reports from Turkey said Nazi and German tourists were flowing across Turkey to Syria by train.

Over 100 German planes already have been reported operating in Syria. (Unconfirmed reports say that France had sent 150 army planes to Syria recently.)

DEMAND BOLD ACTION

British newspapers and public are demanding that Britain "act boldly and stop placating" Vichy.

France has the air base at Palmyra, Rayak, Aleppo and Damascus.

Civil Service Admin.

The Alberta Civil Service Association is also behind the new Victory Loan.

It was organized by William Moeller, president of the Association, that the provincial executive would contribute $1,000,000 worth of bonds in the new Victory Loan.

It was decided that the association purchased $3,000,000 of the last loan, of which $2,000,000 was by the provincial executive and $1,000,000 by Edmonton.

The Dominion branch raised the purchase of $500 of the new Victory Loan.

The provincial civil service fund and the general fund in addition the Edmonton branch contributed $1,000,000.

Civil Service Admin.

The Alberta Civil Service Association pointed out that the point at which the civil service contribution in the case of war savings certificates and bonds is supplemented by other contributions to the civil service agency over which presides T. W. Whalen of the department of agriculture.

Away To A Good Start

Ottawa was able to report that a "satisfactory" response had gone to the Victory Loan. Approximately $100 million of the $600 million required was subscribed on the opening day. Four Alberta points announced their quotas had been reached when the books opened, evidence of good work in advance of the final push put out which prepared the way for the bond sales. From other provinces reports were uniformly favorable. Quebec was first place in the large subscription class, when three millions of provincial savings bonds were turned in.

The Bureau of Statistics makes the timely announcement that the national income for April totalled 434 millions, against 375 millions for April of last year. This confirms previous predictions that the income of the nation for the month will run up to 5,000 million. The Loan calls for a fraction more than one-eighth of this sum. The objective is therefore within the capacity of the country, and the reception given to the bonds shows that the public is well behind the movement.

An important feature of the arrangements is that the small investor is not to be crowded out by the big one. The bonds are to be distributed in proportion to the participants. There is no cause therefore for alarm. One can buy only one bond or a few to fear that he, or she will not be able to get any because of large allocations sent in by financial and other institutions with great sums to invest. There is a fair field and no favors, and all customers are to get equal treatment.

Edmonton Did It Right

Everybody in Edmonton and the surrounding country "loves a parade." This was shown again conclusively on Monday evening, when the sidewalks along the three-mile line of march were packed with people, and the side streets with automobiles. The city folk were out many thousands strong, but there were thousands also from out of town points.

The parade itself surpassed anything seen here before, and Edmonton has a reputation for stages such events better than any other city in the west, if not in Canada. It was a sight to be long remembered, and excellently adapted in all its features to centre attention on the fact that Canada wants men and money—now. Great creases in the sky will be left to do with arranging and presenting that impressive send-off for the two concurrent campaigns.

The reception given by the spectators was equally fitting. Cheers and applause marked the marchers as they came to end, as the man "let go" with enthusiasm. Particularly noticeable was the cheering and hand-clapping which greeted each contingent, representing one of the over-ten countries. From Czechoslovakia, Greece, these countries were brought to mind by delegations bearing national banners, and the crowd on the sidewalks made clear that the wrongs of none of them have been forgotten. It would cheer the hearts of those who have been depressed people in Europe and in China that they could know that in this far-off corner of Canada their claims are numbered among the objectives for which we fight.

It was in every way a fine parade, and a fine start for the campaign to enlist men and dollars in the cause of freedom.

"Planes, More Planes, And More Planes"

It was altogether too much to suppose that the British forces could be got out of Crete intact, or without heavy losses, when the evacuation was being made. And it was known that in the later days of the fierce hand-to-hand fighting they suffered severely. That fifteen thousand men were extracted under the guns of the Nazi land troops, and machine guns of clouds of fighter planes and dive-bombers ranks with the rescue of the army from Dunkirk. The navy did it again, with the limited assistance R.A.F. planes were able to give, under conditions described as "as well as could be." This, too, will go down in history as another "miracle" of discipline and efficiency. Had either been lacking, on land, sea or in the air, the thing could not have been done.

Those who escaped through the hole did not escape. Many had been killed, wounded in the fighting before the evacuation began, and some were no doubt captured when they covered the embankments. They had to be certain, lost far away in the little island. And while the enemy was held there, the Iraqi rebellion was crushed and the Italian forces mopped up in Ethiopia.

Those who stayed in Crete, as prisoners wounded or dead, were vectors in the larger field. They gained time for the better organization of the defence of Egypt and the oil fields. It is to be hoped those still living have the satisfaction of knowing they thus did their duty in Crete.

It is to be noted that the infantry and mechanized units of the defenders lost relatively few men while they were holding their positions. They heavy losses, however, were suffered in a retreat to the coast, and carrying out the embarkation. The only reports make these facts clear. The inference is equally clear. Had these ground troops had the protection of an adequate air force they could have held off the attackers with devastating losses, and would have suffered comparatively little punishment themselves.

There were not enough planes; that is why Crete was lost, despite a heroic defense.

This is the fact that should get home to every Canadian who is able to buy a Victory bond or a war savings certificate, to every worker in an airplane factory, and to all who have to do with directing the arming of our fighting forces.

Western Air Lines has started the scheduled operation of passenger planes between Lethbridge and Great Falls, thus establishing a new regular air service between western Canada and the western United States. The route between the Coast and Winnipeg. And opening also an air route that will be of growing importance when the fields now building are ready and through services begins between the United States and Alaska.

Sales of motor cars, not counting those bought by the government for military use, show an increase of eleven per cent for April over the figures a year ago. It does not follow that Canadians are buying new cars "as usual," regardless of the war. A good many firms have been turning in their reports, and this is the case with new ones, suspecting that new cars may not be available a year from now. That probably accounts for many thousands of new car sales.

Japan Grows Insistent

Nazi Success in Crete Stirs Nippon's Prowess to Press Their Demands

BY HAROLD L. WEIR

Editor of the Edmonton Bulletin

By indication that he would not declare war on the Axis, but would resist certain specified Axis acts, Japan has given the United States, President Roosevelt gave Japan some reason to hope that she might enter the war if America took the belligerent initiative.

Consequently the day or after Mr. Roosevelt's speech, the Japanese made considerable resistance among the Japanese people.

The Japanese attitude changed abruptly with the news of the fall of Crete.

Looking them Over

JACK KELLY

After the last world war, U.S. sport ruled until its richest age, the 1930s. Then came the depression and the war, and the game called them. However, it begins to look like American sport is entering another golden era as wage miners pour out in the gigantic defense program.

Golf courses are more crowded than they have been since the markets crashed in 1929 and brokers started diving out of skyscraper windows. The big headache is to find caddies enough. Industry is absorbing many young men, that mighty few are left to tote bags around. First World War veterans have a crowd of $40,000 golf fans to watch the National Open.

That most popular of all sports, fishing, is becoming so fast that tackle manufacturers are all tied up in knots trying to meet the demand. One manufacturer reported this week that he was 60,000 steel rods behind on his orders. Hunters, with an eye to future scarcity, have cleaned out practically all retail stocks of the more popular guns.

But spectator sports are booming, too. Despite the fact that they can jam only 34,000 into their home park, Brooklyn Dodgers played to 201,000 fans in their first 18 games at home. In their first 24 games in the east, the Doves have drawn 200,000.

Race betting will soar this season to the highest heights it has ever reached in any country. Already a record daily total of $158,000, biggest total ever wagered on a New York track, has been chalked up at Belmont. The total betting for the first 12 days of this Belmont meet was $1,260,343 for a daily average of more than $40,000.

The payoff comes in college football. So many good paying jobs are now available that coaches are having trouble to get their stars to return to college for knowledge and the established rate of "amateur" remuneration.

Football Situation Promising

COMING to the meeting of the Canada and Edmonton indications are that the surprise 17-10 victory won by the Edmonton Athletic Club hung on the Maple Leafs' city champions of last season, produced a high calibre of play and a wide-open race to enter the western title playoffs. The City Junior League is on a solid foundation at last—and that means we'll have fitsly the right hand for permanent football here.

It seems almost certain that the Western Conference will expand again into a four-city circuit—Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver. Regina definitely decided to go at a meeting this week, according to reports received here.

Uncle Mike Hits Pay-Dirt Again

THE golden touch of Midas has nothing on the touch possessed by Uncle Mike, the greatest business builder. Modern pictures of Joe Louis' recent fights have been flying off the news box office counters, and no distributor would bid on the film to the tune of the Louis-Buddy Baer engagement. Buddy's own organization makes these films and then sells them to distributors.

Finally, Jimbo himself offered a total of $7,000 to Louis and Baer for movie rights, and they accepted. It was a gamble for Jacobs, but after the controversial day at the movies, every theatre in Canada and the United States was clamoring for the film. Uncle Mike is making one of his biggest clearings on this $7,000 fight today.

If referee Arthur Donovan had been gifted with forethought, he probably would have been glad to bid $7,000 for the films for the right to burn them. They make this usually smooth-working official look pretty bad. He appears to have completely lost his head when the jam developed.

Gotham Pays Last Respects To Iron Lou Gehrig Today

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Funeral services will be held today for Lou Gehrig in the same semi-privacy in which the great first baseman of New York Yankees battled disease for two years.

From many parts of the country messages of condolence Tuesday poured into Gehrig's home and the offices of the ball club. Baseball notables arranged to be here for the funeral, and those who never had been close to him, like the bane of Yankee Stadium, filed past his bier for a final look at the unforgettable "iron horse" who had 2,130 consecutive games in 14 years.

For hours after his body was placed in the ornate, high-top-lined casket, the best centre players in western Canada, will swap his Calgary Blanket and form for that of Toronto Argonauts this fall.

Gehrig's move to Eastern Canada will end a three-year career on western grids that began with his arrival from the Bronx in 1934. He was a star at the flowered basket.

NEW YORK, June 4.—(UPI)—With only three more shopping days until the Belmont Stakes, Whirlaway appears more certain than ever to capture Turfwood's crown.

The list of nominees has shrunk until six are regarded as likely to win. Two of these are on the doubtful side.

If Whirlaway wins the Belmont Stakes, he will be the first horse to break the Preakness record. Don't bet the Preakness, though, on the horse in history to cop all three events.

Other probable starters are:

Robert Morris, Idaho; Larry Chance, Attention and Bold Immortal.

JUST A KID TEAM

Mixed Youth's Softball team, consisting of four amateur boys, has been organized. Among more, Metropolitan, Biell and McDouall each club has a new league.

Following is a list of the games to be played:

June 4—Metropolitans vs. Biell. June 11—Metropolitans vs. Biell. June 18—Metropolitans vs. McDouall. June 25—Metropolitans at Aviemore. June 2—Metropolitans vs. Biell. June 9—Aviemore at McDouall. June 16—Metropolitans vs. Biell. June 23—McDouall at Aviemore. June 30—Biell at Aviemore.

DAILY DOUBLE

The Daily Double at Edmonton Daily Leader paid $30.00. Smoke Ballie's class 2 for 6, and you're sure of a double attraction high in quality, low in price.

Following the services today the body is to be cremated.

Gehrig's Cheer Never Faltered Single Moment

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Facing death, Lou Gehrig was so cheerful he shamed his friends into what amounted to a conspiracy of hope.

He would not admit his illness was so serious that he could not walk, and his marvelous courage gave shelter to others. This was the reason the last day of one of baseball's best seasons was chalked up in comparative secrecy.

"The Iron Horse," to whom the nation had given its love, was not the only one who wanted to be left alone.

Letters poured in.

"Every day I get letters asking about me. I am very sick," he said. "I am not the only one who wants to help. Everybody wants to help. But everybody wants to know what I am doing."

"I am not the only one who wants to know what I am doing," he said. "I am not the only one who wants to help. But everybody wants to know what I am doing."

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

This is the first time I have ever had a hand in reducing a movie star. Carol Bruce, who sang her way into the affections of the critics, has just taken off 10 pounds. Since Carol did a 100 per cent job, I am sure that Carol's mother is an excellent cook. Carol is a real comedienne, already lovely figure, it would be hard to say which of us is more pleased.

As you may recall, I told you while back that this young actress was planning to slim down for the

Dorothy Dix Says:

A question from a reader asked recently seems a trifle academic, since they are noted for their prowess as husband-getters. Nevertheless, the problem does occur, and the charm of Dorothy Dix's column lies in her early thirties, with a desire to have a nice little home and a comfortable wad of money in the bank. In deciding whether she shall marry again or continue to live alone and devote her life to her children.

It isn't that there is any particular man in the case, nor do I question the attractiveness of the girl. It is just that an adult woman finds the society of even her own mother less attractive than the company of a companion of her own sex. She realizes that modern mothers are growing up almost overnight, and she wonders if life won't be prettier when Tommie, or Johnnie, or whatever his name is, comes along and she will be left with nothing to do except to be a professional widow.

A widower faces no such difficult decision. All he has to do is remarry, because a home without a wife at the head of it is like a ship without a pilot at the wheel.

Carol Bruce, however, has nothing to do but wait, and she is impatiently waiting for him to come back. She kept her bust the same, 34 inches, whittled her waist from 37 inches down to 34 inches, and she has enough money upon which to support her family. Marriage is a hump to climb over, but she can do it, she chooses. A husband is a luxury and not a necessity.

But the widow can make a better life for her children than she can keep them clean and well and take care of them, and she has enough money upon which to support her family. Marriage is a hump to climb over, but she can do it, she chooses. A husband is a luxury and not a necessity.

For a woman so placed, the chief argument against remarrying is the danger that the new husband will be jealous of the children, as likely to be jealous of their stepchildren as women are, and when this occurs it not only wrecks the happiness of the child but of the mother.

Other characters are warned for life by the injustice shown them, and when a mother sees her neighbor little children, she is likely to feel that her heart is broken. No woman's lot is sadder than that of the wife who is torn between her second husband and the children of her first marriage.

On the other hand, children soon grow up and leave the home nest, and no right-thinking mother would be likely to feel that her son or daughter would be less happy if she could. She wants them to follow their fortunes, to marry and settle up home of their own, and, if she's a good mother, she wants them to be good husbands.

The symptoms may be many and varied, but the principal one is noticed by friends and relatives, the patient and who invariably strongly recommend an iron tonic to "build up the blood."

However, from a scientific viewpoint, it should be understood that in order to determine the cause of the disease, the underlying cause must first be found, treated, and removed, and all the rest follows. This would not influence the outcome unless this is done. Once the cause is determined and properly treated, the blood count will return to normal, and the patient will return to a state where she can eat, sleep, and live a normal life.

So the question of whether a widow with children should remarry remains one that every woman must answer for herself, but if she does, she should do it more carefully than she did first, for her children's happiness is involved, as well as her own.

WOMAN'S CHILDREN HAVE GENERALLY GONE ABOUT THE BUSINESS OF GETTING MARRIED SINCE THEY WERE STILL IN THE EARLY FORTIES

This leaves a long life for the parents, who are often left widows or widowers to care for their children, and makes the sacrifice seem out of all proportion. The problem, of course, is that the children may be too old to be of much help, and the parents are left to care for them.

The woman's children have generally gone about the business of getting married since they were still in the early forties.

This leaves a long life for the parents, who are often left widows or widowers to care for their children, and makes the sacrifice seem out of all proportion. The problem, of course, is that the children may be too old to be of much help, and the parents are left to care for them.

Caterpillars Do Damage To Trees

Damage caused by the "forest tent" caterpillar is said to be increasing rapidly. In the last few weeks grooms and fairways are swarming with the pests. Damage is particularly heavy in the valley of the Columbia River where whole areas of trees and bushes have been stripped of their leaves.

University of Alberta extension department officials say they have been "deluged" by letters from people asking for permission to request for the pamphlet by Lieut.-Col. E. H. Strickland telling how to kill the forest tent caterpillar.

Peak of the plague should be in about two weeks. This year "attack" is unusual in that caterpillars are only found in a river area. At this stage there is not much that can be done to cope with the pest.

Meditation of trees and shrubs may yet infested can be prevented by spraying the foliage with some insecticide such as kerosene, creosote, lead arsenate or calcium arsenite. Nicotine sulphate or coal oil emulsion may be used through a small sprayer.

Coal oil emulsion is made by shaking one gallon of coal oil with half a pound of laundry soap in one gallon of hot water. To this mixture add two gallons of coal oil after the mixture has been heated over fire. It should be diluted twice for use on tree trunks and 10 times for use on green foliage.

Board and Room Girls

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE
SYBIL, who always consumed the first cup of coffee after her coffee was first, Pal with sympathetic smile, even belated sense of guilt she passed the paper to Faith without comment.

The news of Brenda Parker's engagement to Lee Brent stood out upon the page. She had read it in the illuminated letters and reading it, Faith realized upon what a weak hope she had built her high hopes. Just because one girl had ago in a week moment Lee had told her he loved her she had imagined a strong girl with the traditional happy ending.

Her shocked eyes met Sybil's but the smile was still there. They were at the table. Miss Van had gone to the kitchen for more toast. Pal had just come in from coffee and reported to her own room where presently Sybil followed her.

"I'm so sorry, Faith. I'd give anything to have you understand," Sybil said but said nothing else.

"It's all right, Sybil. It just proves there never was as much to it as I believed. Let's talk about it," Faith purred. "ever again."

NO TIME

The yead no time for further discussion and Faith went to work as usual. All that day she slipped from one to another of the new fall coats which were comfortably worn in the August weather.

The French room, menchanted and poised with a faint smile stamped upon her face, while Lee, Brenda, whom he had treated with such casual friendliness at the house of his parents, had seized Faith in his arms and kissed her.

Good works, Brenda! You certainly know what you were doing when you were thinking of your application at your parents' summer cottage. Girls like that, unaffected, confident, are in society now; it over the rest of us.

To be sure one of Brenda's friends worked in a gift shop in the same store. Empathy amid with social background was part of the policy of the school the only most exclusive.

Such girls never took their jobs seriously. It was a game to them not a question of skill. While bread and butter, Brenda had been nice to Faith. She was an attractive girl and she liked her. Lee had seen her. Yes, it is lovely, says it?

One of our newest models while just as attractive as the others, the companionship of laughter and long ride together of dancing and swimming in the moonlight, Lee had said, "I don't seem to be around you without losing my head." The picture is this: "We're in love."
